

Wall Street Dairy welcomes the Wolcott family!

As we enter the Christmas season and approach 2013 with great anticipation, we are blessed to welcome Greg Wolcott and his family to Wall Street Dairy as our new herd manager. Greg joins us from his family's local Chautauqua County commercial Holstein operation where he worked for 15 years following his graduation from Cornell University. (OK, we Cornellians need to stick together!)

As the saying goes, sometimes what we need the most is right next to us when we least expect it and this was certainly the case with Greg and his wonderful family. Greg grew up in the area, he was the best man in nephew Toby's recent wedding, and we are very fortunate that when we needed an experienced new herd manager, Greg was available. Already in the area, he hit the ground running without missing a beat. If this wasn't enough, his enthusiastic and knowledgeable family jumped in and helped which has given us the new energy that we were seeking.

This year has been one of trials and triumphs for our family. But looking at this photo of the Wolcott family and our two most recent hopefuls, Wall-St. Braxton A.M. (thanks Zack for the great and fitting name) and Wall-St. Jives Hurricane Sandy (guess when she was born?), we have renewed hope and know that the world is still basically a good and decent place.

We appreciate the many kindnesses and support that we have received throughout 2012, and we look forward to seeing many of you early in the new year. Happy Holidays!
